

Pieces of Merlin's parchment

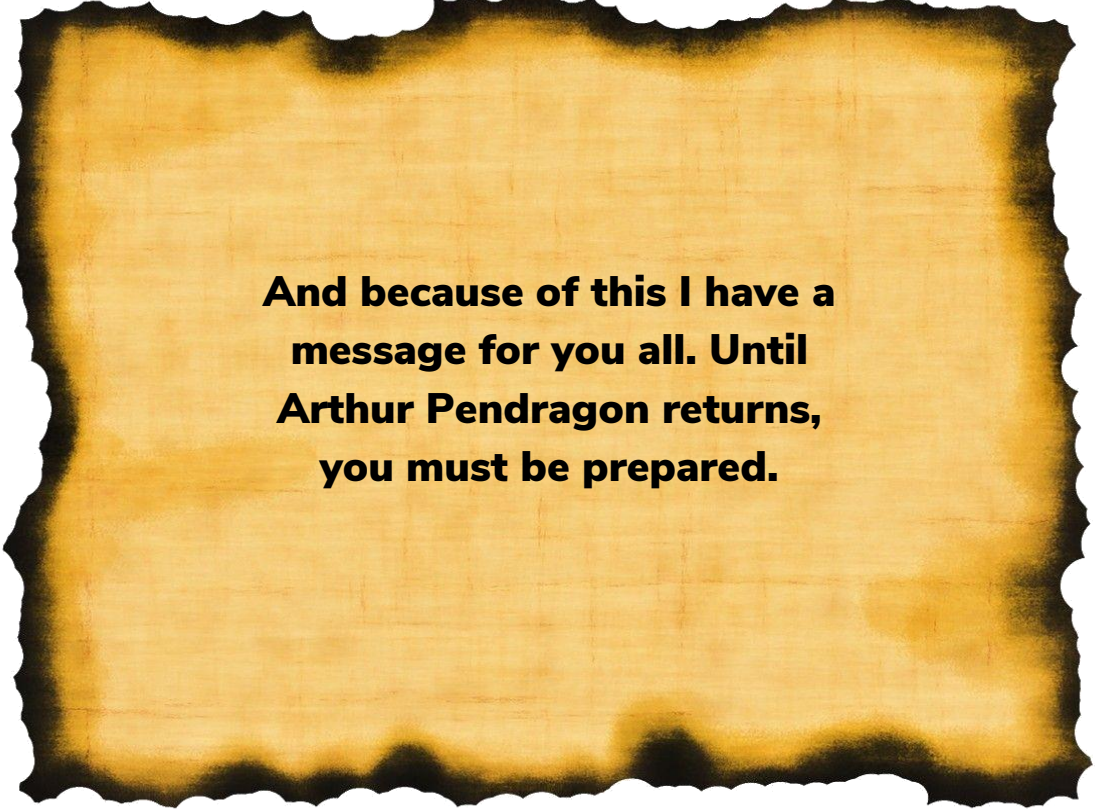

Print enough copies for each team to earn a complete set whilst playing 'The colours of Avalon'.

Fear not for me, young people of Britain. Because I, Merlin the Wise, knew that my time was nearing its end. I send you this message because I know you are to be trusted.

While my time may be done, I knew that I could save my friend King Arthur, who was wounded by an arrow in battle. We must all stay loyal to our friends, have self-respect and respect for others.

Noble Arthur has gone to the Isle of Avalon, where he will be hidden from enemies by the mists of Avalon, and where he can recover until Britain needs him most. While we wait you must do your best and take courage in all the difficulties we face.

And because of this I have a message for you all. Until Arthur Pendragon returns, you must be prepared.
